

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of corporate ownership run amok. How dare they use the public airwaves for a personal agenda.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get filtered news according to what makes their particular corporation more profitable.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
